Disaster at Reading.

READING, Pa., January 9.—A cyclone passed over this city this evening doing considerable damage, and killing more than fifty people. A silk mill in which 700 girls were employed blew down just before the hour for quitting work. Everything is in confusion. The loss of life is much heavier than at first reported. About the same time there was an explosion and fire in the same neighborhood, by which eight men burned to death.

PARTICULARS OF THE DISASTER.

READING, January 9.—This was the darkest night in the history of Reading. A death-like pall hangs upon the city, the result of the most horrible disaster in its history. A hundred households are in mourning as the result of one of the severest calamities known in Pennsylvania. A cyclone swept over the northern portion of the city this afternoon and laid waste everything within its reach and with terrible loss of life. The lives that have been sacrificed and the number that have been injured can only be estimated. The most reliable computation at hand to-night is that not less than sixty persons have been killed outright and one hundred injured.

How this terrible calamity occurred is about as follows. It was raining very hard all the morning. Towards noon it ceased almost entirely, and by afternoon there was every indication that there would be an entire cessation of the rain storm. Half an hour afterward a bright sun made a very effort to penetrate the clouds. There was a clear sky over it. They continued to lab no later. Then the sky changed with a suddenness that was appalling. The heavy clouds gave way to ominous signs of a coming storm. Dark, heavy [illegible] of clouds rolled themselves towards town, and soon the storm [illegible] upon it. The storm struck the city in the form of a funnel shaped storm cloud which struck

Half an hour afterward a bright sun made a very effort to penetrate the clouds. There was a clear sky over it. They continued to lab no later. Then the sky changed with a suddenness that was appalling. The heavy clouds gave way to ominous signs of a coming storm. Dark, heavy [illegible] of clouds rolled themselves towards town, and soon the storm [illegible] upon it. The storm struck the city in the form of a funnel shaped storm cloud which struck [illegible] of dancer in a funnel shaped mushroom of wind and debris, which seemed to gather up everything within its reach and cast it right and left. Out in the country houses and barns were unroofed, farm buildings overturned, cities roofed and fences blown down. Destruction spread in every direction. The track of this destructive element was not more than 300 feet wide, and while it only touched the suburbs of the city

It came from the west, but passed along the northern border of Reading. It first touched the Mount Penn stove works. Here the corner of a building was struck and a portion of the roof was cut off as nicely as if done with a pair of scissors. Then the storm cloud hurried across the city. It took off a portion of the roof of J. L. Sternberg's clothing mill, and a number of dwellings were unroofed as readily as if their tin roofs were paper. The storm then swept across the property of the Reading Railroad company and crossed the railroad. Here a passenger car was standing. This was overturned as quickly as if it had been a toy and its splinters scattered in every direction.

Meanwhile rain poured down in torrents, the atmosphere became heavy and oppressive and it was almost as dark as night. Directly on one side of the track of the Reading railroad were situated the paint shops of the company. It was a one story building about 60x150 feet in size and held about thirty men employed in painting passenger cars. There were eight or nine of those cars in the building. They had been built at the company's shops at a cost of $20,000 each. The building was struck squarely and the cars were scattered about as if they were playthings. cars were turned upon their sides, while the men were buried in the debris.

The rear cylinder of each of the passenger cars was partly filled with gas, and they were ready to be taken out on the road in a few days. They exploded one after another, making a loud noise, causing people to run out of their houses thinking it was the sound of an earthquake. There was a considerable quantity of gasoline in the building, and this added fuel to the flames. A sheet of flame shot upward with the roar of musketry. Some twenty men had a chance to escape, coming out of the debris, but four of the unfortunates were enveloped in the flames. Their cries were heard for a few moments by the terrified workmen, and then their voices were hushed forever. They were quickly roasted to death.

It became the fire department to get out, but their services were of no avail. The building and cars were burned to fifteen minutes and there is left but blackened, smoking debris which lay four human beings charred to a crisp. Their names are as follows: Albert Landberger, Sheridan and George Schaffer. It was said that several others had been killed, but these are the only ones who [illegible] another employe in the paint shop were broken, and Geo. Knapp [illegible] The loss to the company is fully $75,000.

[illegible] was going on the storm continued [illegible] and with fearful rapidity. It must have traveled at the rate of one hundred miles an hour. It struck some more cars and unroofed a dozen or more houses. Huge sheets of tin were carried away and deposited [illegible]. Then the storm proceeded in its course. Directly in its path at the corner of Twelfth and Marion streets stood the [illegible] saw mill. Here about fifty men worked. The building was a substantial structure, most substantially built, two stories in height and had a base [illegible] feet. It occupied an entire square of ground. The size of the building was nearly 300 feet in length by about 150 feet wide. It was surmounted by a massive tower fully 100 feet high. The storm struck the building squarely and [illegible] through the entire length of the building. Then it struck the tower and carried it down through the building, bringing the entire mass of brick, timber and debris to the ground.

How many more are under the debris which is piled up twenty feet high on Diamond street cannot be stated, but it is believed at least a score more are held prisoners or perhaps dead. As fast as they are taken from the ruins they are being conveyed to the various hospitals in the city. The storm lasted thirty minutes and was the heaviest known in this section for years. A number of other buildings were damaged by the high wind. A gas [illegible] Mcintosh, Hemphill & Co was blown down, but as far as known no one was killed or injured.

PITTSBURG, January 9.—Up to four p. m. 28 persons were taken from the ruins. Of these four are dead. Several are so badly injured recovery is almost impossible. A large number are still buried under the debris. Martin Hiller has taken out of the barber shop and four more men, and then became [illegible]

A LEGAL VICTORY.

West Virginia Republicans Victorious in the Courts.

Goff and Martin Given a Majority by the Decision.

State's Governor Opposes Admission of the Territory.

The Oklahoma Bill Causes a Deadlock in the House.

A Republican Victory.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., January 9.—In the circuit court this morning Judge Gaujoe granted the rule against the county court to show cause why it should not be fined and attached for contempt in forwarding certificates of election in this county for governor and congress in violation of the injunction granted by Judge McGinnis, of the Cabell circuit court. It also dismissed the injunction and restored heretofore awarded at the instance of Judge Fleming and Mr. Anderson. This is a victory for the republicans, and gives Goff and McGinnis a clear plurality on the face of the returns for governor and congressman. Both are republicans.

Utah as a State.

WASHINGTON, January 9.—C. C. Wolf, appointed governor of Utah by President Cleveland, arrived in Washington last Sunday night. He intends to appear before the house committee on territories Wednesday to oppose the admission of Utah as a state. This sentiment, he says, is shared by nearly every non-Mormon or gentile in the territory. West places his objection on the broad grounds that the Mormons are unfitted to exercise the rights of citizens.

The governor said: "To give these people the sovereign right proposed would be to place every non-Mormon in Utah completely at their mercy. Under the territorial form of government we are protected by congress and the executive. Confer the right of statehood upon [illegible] the Mormon [illegible] and [illegible] savages and [illegible] unjust and arbitrary in their character as outsider could not live among them. Hence I say all non-Mormons in the territory without regard to parties oppose the proposition of statehood."

"What then do you propose as a substitute?"

"I favor leaving it a territory, but amending the laws so as to abridge the power of the church. A territorial committee acting in conjunction with the governor, which would control all appointments, who did answer our purpose exactly. Utah would enjoy upon an era of prosperity such as no other territory has ever known."

Fiftieth Congress.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, January 9.—The house amendments to the Nicaragua canal bill were non concurred, and Sherman, Edmunds and Morgan were appointed conferees.

The senate then resumed consideration of the tariff bill, the pending question being on Vance's amendment that the duty on no article in the schedule on flax, hemp and jute of all grades 50 per cent ad valorem. The amendment was rejected.

The schedule on wool and manufactures of wool was, at the request of Allison, held over informally, and the schedule on cotton and silk goods was taken up.

Vest interrupted paragraph 435 in relation to velvets, and pushes, including ribbons, and asked whether that was the item involved in the suit between John Wanamaker and the government.

Aldrich stated that the suit referred to was in reference to the proper construction of paragraph 448, in the schedule of the existing law. The defect in the existing law was radically cured by the substitute.

On motion of Aldrich paragraph 375 was amended by striking out the words "weighing not less than one ounce nor more than eight ounces per quarter yard" and paragraph 377, relating to lace and embroideries, was amended by adding the words "including knit goods."

Further amendments were offered to the silk schedule, and then schedule M (books, papers, etc.) was reached. Various other amendments were offered and rejected, and then schedule N (sundries) was reached.

On motion of Allison paragraph 390 (buttons, forms, lastings, etc.) was amended by striking out the words "silk twist."

Vest moved to amend paragraph 393, taxing coal (bituminous and shale) 75 cents per ton by making it free. He argued that coal as well as lumber should be free.

Faulkner argued against the amendment and said in opposing it he stood on solid democratic ground.

Gorman also opposed the amendment.

HOUSE.

That Weaver, of Iowa, is in earnest in his intention to do all in his power to prevent the house from accomplishing any business until it has finally acted upon the Oklahoma bill was demonstrated this morning. Immediately after prayer Weaver called the speaker's attention to the rule which directs that officer after [illegible] to order a call upon the application of a quorum, reading of the journal of the last day's sitting. He raised the point of order that the journal could not be read until it was apparent that a quorum was in attendance.

The speaker sustained the point and directed the clerk to call the roll. Filibustering continued until 3:30 p. m., when the house adjourned.

Kilrain Dissatisfied.

ALBANY, N. Y., January 9.—Kilrain says he is not satisfied with the Toronto agreement. He says his friends had to give away on everything to bring Sullivan to terms, and that the baby was even now trying to crawl out of the fight. Putting the fight off six months and choosing a referee at the ring side are Kilrain's objections. He says the referee thus chosen would of course be a Sullivan man. Kilrain could not yet say whether he would fight under the agreement or not. He would have to consult friends in New York. He did not believe [illegible] would meet on having everything his way and would blame the other party for kicking, and the fight would fall through.

NEW YORK, January 9.—When shown what Kilrain had said at Albany to day Sullivan said in reply: "Kilrain is a monkey. Before are always chosen at the ring side in championship fights. I will be there to fight, whether he is or not.

A Severe Storm at Sunbury.

SUNBURY, Pa., January 9.—A terrible accident occurred in this city this morning. A rain and wind storm came up suddenly and the roofs of two of the stacks of the Sunbury nail mills. The mill is situated between the Reading and Pennsylvania railroads in the outskirts of the city. It is a puddling mill having six furnaces. Stack No. 2 was thrown over on the roof, dropping with it stack No. 3. They crushed through the roof completely demolishing the puddling department of the mill. Thirty-two men were employed in this department and half of them were buried in the ruins. The fire alarm was sounded and soon hundreds surrounded the mill. Men were carried out half naked and many are still [illegible] several others are in the ruins. Cries and groans can be heard from the ruins. Showers of [illegible] and unknown man have been taken out dead. The wounded so far rescued [illegible] and a number of other employes are missing. Several of the wounded cannot recover.

Blizzard at Williamsport.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., January 9.—To-day's storm is the worst known here in years. Large number of telegraph poles were damaged and a part on of the new Domestic sewing machine factory was blown down and the remainder partially uncovered. Several buildings were blown down and others damaged.

Jake Gaudaur the oarsman has challenged Wm. O'Connor of Toronto to row three miles for $1,000 and the championship of America.

There are no 60 or 80 feet streets, and narrow, 10-feet alleys, such as are found in other loudly advertised "Additions," with high sounding titles, where you pay high prices for lots, without duly considering that you are throwing away your money.

In the Alley Behind Every Lot in Parrish's Addition

There is a 3-inch Water Pipe connected at Chestnut Street with a 16-inch main; the Largest in the City's System. THE MAIN CITY DITCH, taking pure, clear water from the Fountain, runs just back of PARRISH'S ADDITION, and within a stone's throw of it.

YOU ARE SURE TO GET WATER

(Both from Pipes and Ditch) in PARRISH'S ADDITION if there is any water in the Fountain, even if other parts of the city are suffering from scarcity of the precious fluid.

REMEMBER THE FOREGOING, and then, when I tell you I will sell you a First-Class

Lot in Parrish's Addition for $350

To $1,000 a full size lot 50 by 140 feet—do not hesitate a moment about buying. You can buy two lots on a corner and erect pretty little cottages (cost $1,000), giving each cottage a neat, pretty little yard, and readily rent them, owing to the location, etc.

To Pay You 25 to 35 Per Cent Per Annum on the Entire Investment.

WHERE CAN YOU DO THIS ELSEWHERE?

There will be a meeting at Mr. H. S. Woodruff's office 101 Pike's Peak avenue, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, of all those interested in foot ball. It is proposed to organize a club that can redeem the defeat of New Year's day.

The musical and literary entertainment given by Pike's Peak lodge last evening was largely attended by the members of the order and their friends. The programme was most interesting throughout, and the lodge is to be congratulated on the good start it has made in its series of entertainments

Judge Campbell has appointed Mr. Edgar Howbert of this city to be district clerk for this county. Mr. Howbert's many friends will be greatly pleased to hear of his appointment. He has a large acquaintance throughout the county, having lived here from early childhood and is in every way qualified to fill the position.

The members of G. A. R. post 22 installed the following officers for the year last night: Otis Renick, post commander; A. H. Corman, senior vice commander, A. R. Kiefler, chaplain; D. Heron, quartermaster, J. H. Chapman, officer of the day; L. E. Dwinell, adjutant; L. B. Farrar, as [illegible] adjutant; A. S. Holbrook, surgeon; F. E. Dow, assistant surgeon. Mr Geo O. Perkins was the installing officer.

The first reception tendered by the University club to its friends yesterday afternoon proved to be a very pleasant event. Coffee, cake and ice cream were served in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church to about 75 lady guests. The College Glee club enlivened the occasion by several songs. The opinion was freely expressed that it would be pleasant to have these receptions more frequently.

The remains of Fred Wurstefield, the freight conductor who was killed at the Santa Fe depot on Monday night, were viewed by the company yesterday but it was not deemed necessary to hold an inquest. The body was prepared for interment by Hallett & Baker yesterday and was taken to Akron, Ohio, last night by Mr. W. E. Chubbuck, Santa Fe freight conductor. Conductors Wurstefield and Chubbuck had been friends and had worked together for a number of years. They had a compact, that if either of them should be killed the other would accompany his remains home and see that they were properly buried, and Conductor Chubbuck is now performing his part of the compact. Conductor Wurstefield was unmarried but has relatives at Akron. He was quite well known in this county having worked on the Manitou branch of the Rio Grande

The Boston Home Journal in speaking of the concert company, which will appear at the opera house next Tuesday evening, says: "The Boston Symphony Orchestral club made its first appearance in this city at a concert given in Association hall Thursday evening. A very large audience crowded the hall, and it included an unusual number of well known critics and musicians, yet the success of the club was acknowledged with a unanimity and enthusiasm that are seldom witnessed. Every member of the organization is manifestly an artist, and the players' ensemble is characterized by some of the best gradations of light and shade, as well as purity of tone, and unity of attack. The most interesting feature of the concert by far was the remarkably finished, refined, and delightful performance by Mr Willis Nowell of Sarasate's Fantasie on 'Faust.' Mr. Nowell is the accomplished concert master of the club and his rendering of the fantasie was simply a marvel of artistic finish, the charming effect of which was acknowledged in some of the heartiest applause of the evening, and the 'cello solos by Mr Philip Roth unmistakably proved him to be a genuine artist. The singing of the 'Jewel Song' from 'Faust,' by Miss Elsa Clark Cushing was warmly encored."

Many a tragedy and many a comedy is enacted on the stage of which the audience knows nothing. It is an old theme for writers to depict the lights and shadows of life back of the scenes. A familiar picture is that of the clown who laughs and jokes while upon the boards, but whose heart is at home with a sick wife or aged parent. Who has not seen a picture of the smiling Juliet talking from the balcony to Romeo and rocking a cradle with her foot. Something very much of this nature was transpiring at the opera house on Saturday night, all unknown to the well pleased audience. When the performance was at its height a telegram was brought to the Dalys, dated at New York, which read something like this: "Mother has arrived. Brother's dying." Words can't tell but the message had the import to the strolling players that such messages have to all the world the sickening fear the sinking heart and restless desire to flee to the side of the suffering loved ones. Yet the comedy went on, the clowns joked the acrobats leaped and danced and the audience never missed a laugh

The name of ex-Governor Proctor of Vermont has been added to the list of cabinet possibilities. It must not be forgotten that Vermont alone cast the solid vote of its delegation from the first to the last ballot, for General Harrison.

Some people are giving themselves much unnecessary trouble about General Harrison's inaugural ball. First, some clergymen made objections to dancing on that occasion. Then a number of patriotic Americans demanded that none but American wines be used, and now the Woman's Christian Temperance Union sends a petition to the inaugural ball committee requesting that no alcoholic beverages at all be allowed.

Governor Hill, of New York, in his annual message suggested that an amendment to the federal constitution "should be proposed in Congress by the authority of the state and advocated by its senators and representatives, extending the presidential term of office to six years, declaring the president to be ineligible for re-election, and providing that the chief magistrate shall at the expiration of his term become a member of the United States senate for life. With regard to lengthening the term there is much to be said for and against. But it is probable that should the question come to an issue the preponderance of public sentiment will be found to favor the opportunity to change our executive every four years. The proposition to make the president ineligible for re-election is bold and still has many strong supporters; but as a famous statesman once said in debating on this subject, "It is a question whether he who has proved bad if most fit, for an office should be excluded from holding it." As to admitting the retiring executive to the senate, this would entirely change the nature of that body.

The settlement of the Burlington strike is said to have been brought about by mutual concessions. The Chicago Times asks why the Burlington did not make the concessions earlier and so not lose its $3,000,000 in net earnings. The reason is probably that it has made no concessions from the position at first taken at the time of the strike. The chief point was the classified system by which greater experience and superior ability was rewarded with the greater pay. This has not been given up. The engineers seem to have given up everything. The telegram of President Perkins simply says we forgive the men for striking. We will not prosecute for lawless acts; we will abolish the black list and receive any of the striking engineers back when there is a vacancy. The present engineers, called scabs, will hold their positions. The settlement is a wise outcome. The laboring man is chiefly to be congratulated that the Burlington has succeeded in establishing any principle it contended for. The principle that there should be discrimination in pay based solely on experience, faithfulness and ability is a principle which is thoroughly American. It overthrows all class and caste. It says every man shall be esteemed for what he is. The leveling system may do well enough in a country with classes like England, but it is foreign to our ideas. Here every laboring man has the chance to make of himself whatever his abilities and character entitle him to. If he is abler than his fellow workman he can get more pay. The limit to his rise is only fixed by his capacity. The idea of once a fireman always a fireman or once an engineer always an engineer is too English for this country. Every brakeman on the Burlington system has the chance to be its general manager if he is worthy of the place.
